Weatherman Frowns On FAB Work

Due to unfavorable weather during the past week, progress was halted on the new Fine Arts Building. Several inches of snow fell Wednesday and temperatures zoomed down near the zero point, making construction work impossible.

With two more weeks of good weather, workmen could have completed the roof on the $250,000 building, which should be finished by the latter part of 1956.

The new structure, which was begun during the past summer, will house the Music and Art Departments when completed. Being built on several different levels, the building is located on the corners of 4th and 5th SW and 10th St. NW.

FAB To House Lounge

A faculty lounge, two instrumental practice rooms, rest rooms, coat rooms, a boiler room, and janitors' facilities will be located in the basement of the new building.

A choir rehearsal room and a larger band room will be located on the first floor. Also on this floor will be located instructors' offices, classrooms, piano practice rooms, music studios and rooms for organ practice.

A large art instruction room, crafts room, exhibition room, and graphic arts room will be located on the second floor. Sound-proof chalk walls, soundproofed studios, light floors and twin sliding doors will make rooms soundproof.

Funds for the FAB, which is now about one-fourth completed, will be taken from the ALC grant to Wartburg for future expansion and from funds raised by the College Development Association.

Architects From Des Moines

Woodburn and Irving, Des Moines, designers of the new Student Union, are the architects for the Fine Arts Building.

A crew of 14 bricklayers is now waiting to continue work on the structure's roof when the weather should improve, so that work can be resumed. The roof could be finished and windows set in place, workers would begin in the interior rooms during the winter months.

Herb Engelbrecht, assistant to the president, stated, "All the needed materials for the new Fine Arts Building are here, and as soon as weather permits, work will be resumed. There is some doubt now as to whether or not the roof will be completed by Christmas."

Debaters To 'Hash Over' World Affairs

Cecilia Chrutsmpo | John C. Metcalfe | Arthur Webb | Peter von Zehn

By Marcia Arhert
TRUMPET News Writer

Rapid-fire, heated and unrehearsed debate summarizes the type of program in store for Artist Series patrons when the World Affairs Council takes the platform tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Knights Gymnasium.

Portraying a miniature United Nations Security Council in action, the Council consists of a representative from each of four countries.

John C. Metcalfe, American syndicate editor; the Honorable Cecilia Chrutsmpo, former premier of France; Arthur Webb, British correspondent in Washington, and Peter von Zehn, chief Washington correspondent for the West German radio networks, will be the four speakers.

Best In America

Acclaimed as the "best lecture program in America" by Columbia University, the spokesmen from the United States, France, England and Germany will cover the front page news of the day.

Having presented several thousand professional lectures in the past, the Council has selected the four speakers who will present different points of view.

Metcalfe is the former Washington diplomatic correspondent for Time Magazine and the New York Herald Tribune. Having covered many famous international conferences, he now heads his own news syndicate in Washington.

Chautempo Former Premier

Chautempo, previous vice president of France and four times premier, now holds the position of news columnist for European papers. He is conservative in his views on world affairs.

Widely known as the "dean" of British correspondents in Washington, Webb has been on the newspaper field for 50 years. It was he who was responsible for naming the famous Atlantic Charter.

Broadcasting five times weekly to millions of German listeners, Zahn is acknowledged as a leading German correspondent. Stationed in the United States, he covers the American scene on world and national affairs.

Fourth Season

The four-way debate team, now in its fourth season of lectures, will present the background to the main issues, an analysis of the latest developments and also personality and anecdotal material.

Following the four-moving controversy will be a question and answer period.

"I urge all students to attend this fine Artist Series program. It is not merely a lecture program but one which has had tremendous success wherever it has been presented," stated Dr. A. W. Swenson, chairman of the Artist Series committee.

'HOWLING SUCCESS'

Touring Choristers Draw All Types Of Fans

Furor was created to eyes one of the more appreciative fans during the Wartburg Choir's recent concert in Community High School Center, Kiel.

This particular fan became so enthralled with the Christmas number, "Alleluia, Christ Is Born," that she crept onto the stage. Evidently she was endeavoring to blend her musical talents with those of Dr. Edwin Liemohn's group, for the results were a series of high-pitched howls.

Llamohn Not Like Llemohn

The choir was not well was first noticed by the choir members. Dr. Liemohn was not acting at all like Dr. Liemohn. His usually sedate countenance was replaced by a broad smile.

Then the eyes of the baritones strayed. The eyes reflected beautifully in fez—and Dr. Liemohn faced the audience, pounced with his right arm and soberly said, "Would someone please obtain that?"

Choir Notices Feline Observer

The entire choir looked at the blond feline fan sitting on the edge of the stage, her soles hovering from the concluding A flat. The director's dilemma was finally solved when a visiting choir director came forward, seized the copious visitor and removed her from the stage.

A sudden burst of cold Kansas air informed the choir members that the inquisitive cat had been exiled and that the concert could continue.

Azbell Named Delegate To National Convention

William Azbell of the Wartburg Physics Department was chosen alternate delegate to the national convention of Phi Delta Kappa, honorary educational fraternity, at the regular monthly meeting of the Cedar Falls chapter Tuesday evening.

Other Wartburg faculty members belonging to the fraternity are W. G. Fruehling, psychology; Richard Wiedersanders, mathematics; and Dr. Herbert Mayer, education.

The convention will be held at Indiana University, Bloomington, Dec. 28 to Jan. 2.

'Christian Giving For Christian Living' Theme Of Newly Organized Campus Community Chest

"Christian Giving for Christian Living."

With this as a motto and $1,000 as a goal, the newly organized campus Community Chest drive will begin Nov. 28.

Benefiting from the drive will be campus organizations, local homes, national charities and an international scholarship fund. Money will be raised by individual solicitations.

Heading the project is sophomore Mel Frehm. Others on the general board include junior Joanne Dettmann, secretary; sophomore Ken Hoffmann, treasurer; Jean Maas and senior Wayne Landgrebe, publicity; freshman Donna Kramer and junior May and Mildgard, solicitation chairmen; freshman John Solem, artist; and senior Ruth Clark, special events.

Money raised in the drive will go to the Student Memorial Fund and Emergency Fund on the campus level, the Bartels Home for the Aged and the Lutheran Children's Home in the community, the Parent Foundation, Heart Fund and Lutheran Student Association on the national scene, and Asiatic scholarships for the National Christian University of Tokyo.

HEAVY WINDS chilled by subzero temperatures and a light blanket of snow temporarily halted progress on Wartburg's $250,000 Fine Arts Building. Weather permitting, workmen hope to begin on the roof in several weeks. The structure should be completed by the latter part of 1956.

Housed in the multi-leveled structure will be both the Music and Art Departments.

'Once Upon...,' What A Square'

Once upon a time (Oh, dig that square), there lived a college student (What an imagination he has) who was constantly broke (He ain't tellin' me nothin', but nothin').

This fellow barely knew where his next meal was coming from (Obviously he refused to eat in the caf). His clothes were tattered and threadbare, (Chester, that reminds me, wonder if the mail's out yet).

College had made a deep impression on our hero (I tried to get more than six hours of sleep a night either. He lived school you know) so much that he intended to complete four years of it and then maybe take up some graduate work (Mmm, ha ha) and get a good job.

Our friend had a difficult time at school (We all have to go to classes), not so far as classes were concerned, for he was an ambitious lad. He did his assignments regularly and received good marks in the courses (So do I when I go to class).

His chief headache was one of finances (So you already said he was a poor student). It seemed that college had particularly impressed our friend in monetary matters (My folks say the only impression they got was the one on the bank account).

Often he penned letters home trying to explain where and how he had spent his last $3 (I solved that—I write home in blood). His parents were understanding people (How understanding can you get), but everything has its limit, and when he was doing that he was doing with his wacky checks.

Our friend's pen name in "Chester" was constantly plagued by money-hungry students who always wanted to sell something or who wanted to contribute to a "worthy cause." If got a worthy cause to—me). It was hard for him to turn down these people, but he did so out of necessity (What else can you do when you don't have any money?).

Chester thought, it's too bad, but this year's charity drive is being conducted individually, soliciting money for Red Cross and March of Dimes and Cerebral Palsy and Muscular Dystrophy drives (And I wanted to get your them). Maybe, he thought, next year — or maybe after graduation.

But then something else came up (Okay, who wants money now?). The college instituted a drive called a Community Chest (What's that?). It was a plan whereby money was to be solicited from students and then distributed to various worthwhile national charities and the like (That doesn't sound bad).

The idea appealed to Chester. He enthusiastically took pen in hand and happily scrawled a note home asking for several extra pennies (Count me in too).

'NOW Thank We All . . .'

"Now thank we all our God . . ."

Thanksgiving Day, a traditional day for us to be dusted off and played for us on the radio or television or in our churches. A Thanksgiving Day hymn.

We wish we could listen to more of it now, but . . . well, these terse paragraphs that abbreviate our required reading and a report due Tuesday morning . . . there just isn't time.

Thursday . . . we'll be home and with the family, reminding ourselves what good home-cooked turkey tastes like. Then we'll take time to listen to the hymn sung alone.

"Now thank we all our God . . ." How? Now, not next Thursday or Sunday or this evening when we have room or floor devotions or when we're at work, we go to chapel, but what does it mean now, now thank we all our God with hearts and hands and voices.

Thank Him with hearts that do not grumble at term papers and readings and reports, but are happy to be learning how to be stewards of the love here. Thank Him with hands that grow weary with work but do not complain that they are weary. Thank Him with voices that sing of love, patience and understanding instead of sorrow and "I'll take and I'll give."

Now lets listen. Now lets ponder. Now lets act.

"NOW thank we all our God." —C. W.

Footnotes To Faith:

'Be Still, Know I Am God'

By John Beem

"Be still and know that I am God."

Only in our modern age we are confronted by increasing pressures to do something, to be constructively of more service to others, to be more socially adept, and as such we must go and get out to keep up with the ever increasing speed of our society. Even in the college student-because our academic society demands it of us—we are constantly pressured to "do something."

A very logical, and reasonably true, declaration is that our responsibility to others is to take some time and thought to help ourselves and to benefit God. In our case studies and extracurricular participation are the fronts of increase; while religion is the decreasing factor. Oil and water is the cure.

It is not that we intentionally do wrong or many unhappily say it is that we don't stop and take time to even consider what we are neglecting God. To "be still" doesn't necessarily mean to stop talking, but this familiar quote is from which the writer has reference to unity, a church doctrine which tells us we are unable to stop doing; to stop running here and there, and that we increase all activity and reality centers and emanates from God. And this time of "inward activity" is the cure for our ills.

Yes, now more than ever before, we must be still and spiritually in its strongest sense. Increased knowledge and technology can be used to good ends, but the opposite is also true.

Our minds can bring our destruction unless they are guided and controlled by God. Stop and think it over.

For that reason, in this serve we must refer to each of us as individuals and to take time to meditate and know that I am God. It means our life.

'Move Over, Buddy'—Leonardi To Peron

By Don Oberdorfer

One of the foremost trends now to be seen in the events of the world today is the continued clashing of governments. We have Egypt and Russia has been shifting from the rulers around like cards in a deck. However, France is the only country to fall regularly in political upheaval.

Approximately two months ago, Juan Peron of Argentina was ousted by a revolt by the armed forces of his country. Many people in the Western world sat back and wiped their foreheads as relief. New Argentina, under the leadership of the former general, Eduardo Leonardi, should be able to achieve a proper degree of democracy.

Suddenly things in Argentina seemed to be set peace. Those who had cheered at the ousting of Peron now began to give their advice to Leonardi as to how he should run the government. Even with the new body's disappointment, all the ideas were conflicting. Last week, however, all of the ideas that demanded that Leonardi speed up his action in the removal of the Peronist people in the Army.

The situation did not seem to be alleviated when when members in high positions were removed. Even the president's press secretary was fired. Then on May 7 the people began to realize that Leonardi was not himself and was declining with the people's needs.

A few days later demonstrations were calling for a new man in the office. Vice President Rear Admiral Isaac Rojas, was continually going to meetings between top governmental officials and top men in the armed forces.

Emergency meetings of the cabinet were called. Everything seemed to be in confusion upon. President Leonardi, knowing that his position was in danger, took his own infantry headquarters and handed in his forthcoming verdict. When the news came, he knew his fortune had not smiled on him.

Late this week, most of the people were calling for the head of Leonardi himself out. The new president, another army man, took over. This gentleman who will head the government until the next change is Pedro Aramburu.

In this newfound democracy in Argentina going to persist, or will it be only a growth in government until it be lost? Perhaps Aramburu and his cabinet of men will begin to rebuild itself into a new and better country.

Well, it's not very far away—Thanksgiving, that is. No more cafeteria food. Instead, we'll be eating dresses to keep you alive. Ah, but your mother's cooking now there's a real experience with one of the finest arts.

Nobody can cook quite so well as your own mother, no bed is quite as soft as your own bed, no room is quite so homey as the one you've been dreaming about for the last 10 weeks. If you think I'm homesick, you're right.

Remember, though, the sentence that has come into its own as recess last words: "I'll be home for supper, me." Take it easy and keep that knife in place (Readers are kind enough to find for this column as it is!).

In the facts and figures department: Only 29 more shopping days until Christmas.

Just got word about something that should interest you filthy rich millionaires and the rest of the world. Some people down in the division of the United States unit in Denver that makes one cent pieces has been working overtime. Suggestion: Contribute to the college Chest to get these pennies back into circulation.

Bill Melvin, TRUMPET sports writer, hated to see that snow fall this week, but figures that he had to give up the snow shovel he has been using to clean up his room.

The timing of those cigarette advertisers was none too good. Had they waited a few days, they could have used a killing, instead of the everybody-cramming-for-midterms. It was a bumper, anyway, and as we've been saying all semester, it will arrive at full price. Now you can get twice as nervous as before for the same price.

TRUMPET POLL

Car Color Splurge Receives Student OK

"Just the facts, ma'am." That's all the TRUMPET is interested in.

Following is the first of a series of student polls in which will appear regularly in the TRUMPET. Conducted by Merrie Arhart, the poll lets us in its process to present a cross-section of student opinion.

The color splurge of auto manufacturers is here. But is it here? Wartburg College students voted on the question of the use of colors and color combinations of the automobile interior.

Taken at last Tuesday's convocation, the poll showed that colleges takes time to notice the rainbow of hues in current car colors.

Over 311 students expressed their opinions to the question "How do you like the new colors and color combinations of the new automobiles?" Here are the results of the vote.

| | Men | Women | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| Like very much | 41% | 49% | 43% |
| All right | 42% | 44% | 43% |
| Dislike them | 13% | 3% | 9% |
| Can't stand them | 3% | 1% | 2% |
| No opinion | 1% | 3% | 2% |

Although the poll showed the girls to prefer the new colors a little more than the fellows, comments pointed out that there are some qualifications as to likes and dislikes.

One woman and one man showed the opinion that the new colors are appropriate because a person can now choose a color that fits his personality.

Red, "hot," "eye catching," "sensual and colorful and "feminine" are the most frequent comments from the masculine students.

Several women proved their feminine tendencies when they commented that the interior colors of automobiles are appreciated as much as the exterior colors.

OPENING TO ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD

'Three Angels' Ends Tonight

By Shirley Cords

Marie: But my words are a little shop-worn, a little . . .

Joseph: A little unlucky, mademoiselle, damaged by the hard journey here, bruised by unfeeling hands. Fallen angels, mademoiselle.

Marie: I don't care, I'm going to drink to my friend, Angela.

Joseph: Thank you, mademoiselle.

These lines, spoken as a harmonica with the card of the same name, give a unifying play its title and afford a poignantly beautiful ending for the first act of the three acts in Theobold production of "My Three Angels."

Directed by Charles Jackson, Speech Department head, the play by Sam and Bella Spewack, ends its three-night run with the last performance at 8:15 this evening.

Opening to a small but enthusiastic first night crowd, the comedy tells of three wonderful fugitives from prison who invade the Duplay home one memorable Christmas Eve and, in the true sense of the words, become guardian angels.

Three Brightest Stars

Probably the three brightest stars in the firmament are sophomore Bob Loolo, as the sentimental Felix; junior Don Oberlander as the hilarious con-man and senior John Bertrand, playing a fallen Lutheran. The three seem to draw strength from the close relationship of their characterizations of the three angels.

Their performances show a common underrunning theme in the progression of the Duplay family remarkable fitness in all the comedy situations they are put in, the same strong inner strength. The highlight of the evening is undoubtedly the "crisis" scene in which they bring Christmas cheer Trenchard, played by John Werner, sophomore, to justice With Trenchard's capture, the play enters second act and carry the play through to completion.

The comfort on "My Three Angels" was embodied in the two daughters of Mr. Trenchard and his nephew Paul Werner, newcomer to the Wartburg stage is credible both as the unsympathetic and indignant Uncle Henri.

Bill Holm, a sophomore prairie student, also a newcomer, can be credited with a convincing portrayal of a wealthy would-be playwright who forever has supposed love for Marie Louise and his fear of coming to Devil's Island. Even these bad men, however, are quickly taken care of by Adolf, the unsung hero of the evening.

AFTER ENJOYING the "first" presentation of "My Three Angels" last Thursday evening the audience mingles with the cast and partakes of refreshments.

Wick Charming, Sweet

The feminine lead was taken by Evon Wick, sophomore in the part of Marie Louise Duplay. She was charming and sweet in her overall portrayal, but appeared to be holding something back That something came out several times during the evening and mellowed her performance considerably.

Felix and Emile Duccotel, the parents of Marie Louise, played by freshman Jim Kuntz, LCW Little Theater novice, and sophomore Marian Denkinger, the comically bewildering character, respectively, did a good job and can be complimented for not letting their characterizations detract from the total effect. Marian played a warm, motherly person extremely bewildered by the whole situation, but showing enough love to carry her through what ever might come.

The parts of Mademoiselle Parold, played by freshman Marlene Hulbeck, furnished a good comedy side comedy influence, and "after all, someone has to deserve the body." Senior Don Hinrichs, stage manager for the production, played the Lieutenant in a short, but convincing appearance in the "before." About the "Christmas Dinner," played by a live chicken, all that can be said is "Bravo."

Iowa Public Relations Directors At Wartburg For Two-Day Meeting, Monday And Tuesday

Wartburg College and Public Relations Director Norm Fintel will host a meeting of the Iowa College Public Relations Directors Association, 21 and 22.

The group, recently organized at a meeting of the Iowa College Presidents Association in Des Moines, will consider problems concerning public relations and plan assignments to develop a more professional public relations program for private colleges in Iowa. Fintel

Information has been formulated and will be presented at the meet ing.

To Consider Future

Also up for discussion will be the question of how to meet the challenge of future enrollments. Prin. C. H. Becker of Wartburg College has stated that statistical and population studies show that colleges can expect an increase of from 75 to 100 per cent in enrollments by 1970. This means that the public must realize the necessity of the needs facing the schools.

Brooks Favors Planning

Byron H. Brooks, Coe College president and head of the ICPA, has stated that all colleges have registered in advance for the conference. Schools sending representatives include Buena Vista, Central, Coe, Dana, Grinnell, Iowa State, Iowa State Teachers, Loras, Parsons, State University of Iowa and Upper Iowa.

Haefner To Discuss Lutheran Merger

"The Merger," a vital subject to Lutherans, will be the title of Dr. A. R. Haefner's talk when he addresses students in Pueka Lounge Wednesday, Nov. 30, at 7:30.

Second in a series of Sto-Onion lectures, Dr. Haefner's talk will be followed by a discussion period. Coffee will be served after the meeting.

All interested students are urged to attend, according to Raymond Northrim, student social director.

Nelson To Address Science Club Tues.

Science Club members will learn about meteors at the meeting Tuesday evening in Grossmann Hall lounge at 7:30.

Dr. Harry E. Nelson, head of the Mathematics Department at Augustana College Rock Island, Ill., has titled his talk "Meteors— the Only Real Visitors from Outer Space."

Pres. Becker To White House Conference For 4-Day Parley On American Education

Pres. C. H. Becker will attend the White House Conference on Education in Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 through Dec. 1. Purpose of the meeting is to create an awareness of the problems facing American education.

Appointed by Gov. Leo A. Hoegh, Dr. Becker will be the only college president among the 21 Iowa citizens appointed. Approximately two thousand will participate in the four-day conference to be held at the Sheraton Hotel.

Isn't Fat Popular

Described as one of President Eisenhower's pet projects, it is now doubtful whether the Chief Executive will attend because of his recent illness.

Features on the conference include representatives from all 48 states. Limited specifically to the layman, the conference will include school administrators, community leaders, school board members and teachers.

Concentrated Effort

Documentation of the coming parley, Becker stated, "This is the most concentrated effort thus far in history to create an awareness of the importance of, and the problems confronting American Education today."

President Becker is a graduate of Wartburg College and Wartburg Seminary. He received his M.A. from Colorado State and was awarded an honorary D.D. by Wartburg Seminary. Since 1944 he has been president of Wartburg College. He served as president of the Iowa Association of College Presidents for the past two years.

Musicians To Present Recital Monday At 8

Statistically, the Jomen played much better than the consistently rolled over Saturday in a rugged attack. Actually, the Knights left something to be desired.

Jomen injuries have played final toll for the Orange and

THE WARTBURG TRUMPET
Saturday, November 19, 1955 — Waverly, Iowa

Norm Johansen . . . takes time out

Black. Missing from next year's lineup will be all-conference Wendell Iverson, winner of four football "wins."

Leopards Gone

Gerry Leopardson, noted for his rugged defense and high knee action, has also played his last for Jomen. Defensive end Gordon Stan Pettinson, November Athlete of the Month, will be among the missing next year. Buck Dick is Jomen's complete lineup of non-returnees.

Next year's prospects should be brighter. Bill Hornschild, top Jomen passer, has finished with statistics for most of the season. will be back, as will Art Mattingly. With this year's freshmen as next year's sophomores, the Jo-Men could prove to be a strong contender in the Iowa Conference race.

Not Typical Season

Although the past season isn't much to be desired, the records, nevertheless a glance through the record books shows this hasn't been a typical Wartburg season. This year's record was 2-6-0.

The Knights of old have lost almost twice as many games as they've won. A good share of the wins have been gained since Norm Johansen took over the helm in 1950.

The 1953 team copped the Northern Division championship, and the 1954 squad, although finishing second, ported the best Wartburg won-lost record in football history.

"Hang him! He lost the game to old Institute. Abnormal the first game we've lost to them in 14 years. Hang him! Find a stergy limb. Lynch him!"

Don't shiver. Hey, quit pushin', we'll all get to look. There he goes. Look at him dangling there. Boy, he looks stupid!"

If you stop to look around there, you should see him out on the football field."

That's the fashionable thing today. When a school's athletic team is in the midst of a losing streak or the team loses to one of its erstwhile rivals, the thing to do is hang the fellow—in effigy, of course—responsible for the dismal showing.

By now certain rules and standards have come into vogue regarding the hanging time for this lynching ceremony. Although not sanctioned by Emily Post, the following standards are considered in good taste.

Eager students who failed to make the varsity, whose grades are low and who have it in for the school or perhaps refreshment sales at games have been dropping off, must be guarded against. Often they will act on the spur of the moment using whatever first presents itself and, in some cases, not even waiting to take the time to dress up a camera but to enthusiastic force the coach to take an active part.

The thoughts should be given to hanging before a coach's team drops three games in succession. But upon the fourth loss, serious study of definition and the possibility of executing a hang out should be conditioned.

A fifth defeat should quite ACTION. Get with the rope. Find a limb. Construct a dummy. In making a dummy, it should be pointed out that the resident of the house has a passing fancy for the coach and yet should not be thus appear as an idiot who doesn't know which side of the football field is up.

Another occasion for a hanging should be when a coach drops a game to an ancient, hated rival. There is absolutely no excuse for losing to a hated rival before any foe whose rivalry exceeds 25 years.

Regarding procedure, two methods of hanging might be enacted, neither of which is directly related. First, there's the hanging, convincing, usually small group which operates in secrecy and remains inknown throughout its whole execution.

Then there's the mass movement in which the entire student body (this includes instructors who are not related to the hanger), thoroughly disgruntled with the performance of the coach, rally to the house of their institutions sacred (and unspoken of) but for enough. Here must be protected, and the coach never. Face must be saved.

Hang him. There, on the branch. Hoist him up!"

And, why? Why must one pay for the results effected by many? After all, "One million Frenchmen can't be wrong." Can they?

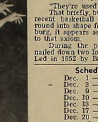
Knights Warm Up For Augsburg Opener December 1

Ron Haverman Cops . . .



. . . 1955 MVP Award

. . . one to Art Margabrin

By Dale Kopitzke
TRUMPET Sports Writer

"They're used to winning."

That briefly, but deftly, characterizes Wartburg's recent basketball teams. And as Knight cagers round into shape for their Dec. 1 opener with Augsburg, it appears as though they're eager to live up to that season.

During the past four seasons Wartburg has nailed down two Iowa Conference basketball crowns. Led in 1952 by Bill Schulz and Bob Campbell, now assistant hoop coach, the Knights captured their first IC title. In '53 the bunch even compiled a 14-6 year but missed.

With Barry Bonthoff and Bob Adix, brother to Bill, scoring in points in 1954, the hard-court crew netted a 16-0 mark, best in Knight history. Last year Wartburg copped the IC championship, but lost out to Coe in the Mideast Tourney.

Cagers Bulk Make Last Year

The cagers last year reversed 43 marks as they rolled up a 19-0 record. The team hit 765 field goals and 515 free throws for a composite 2,043 points and a new high 91.89 per game average. Bob Adix dumped in 232 field goals and scored 380 total points for two new marks.

Luther, Parsons and Iowa Wesleyan have a host of veterans returning. Dubquoe has a crop scored, while Buena Vista has nine returning letter-men. UNI and Simpson should field stronger teams than last year.

Although losing high scorer Adix, who sinked the nets for 1,045 points in his three-year career, the Knights still have the deadly jump shot of junior Art Margabrin, who countered 380 points for a 15.3 average as a newcomer to the varsity last year.

Maynard Madigan, always level-headed under pressure, can be counted on. Sophomores John Adix and Ron Haverman, who pounced on 564 points between them last year, should do even better this year. Junior Al Bahlmann, although only 6 tall, can rebound with the best.

Others who will probably be seeing a lot of varsity action include junior Fritz Fritschel, sophomore Fred Jaspers, Mel Frahm and Ben Hamilton and freshmen Gil Wessel, Wayne Stack, Ken Bright and Denny Wessels.

Gross To See Action 2nd Semester

Transfer student Ray Gross, who becomes eligible the second semester, will definitely see a lot of action with the varsity squad.

The Knights' defense will be basically man to man. Alternately they will switch to the 2-3 zone and will use an inside-breaking out type of offense.

Coach Bill Schulz and Assistant Coach Bob Campbell have been pleased with the work of the squad thus far.

Opperman stated, "The spirit has been very good, and everyone has been hustling for positions."

The Knights will open at Augsburg on Dec. 1. Augsburg will have a veteran squad opposing the Knight Basketeers.

Schedule For December

Dec. 1 — Augsburg, Away
Dec. 3 — St. Mary's, Home
Dec. 9 — Iowa Wesleyan, Away
Dec. 10 — Parsons, Away
Dec. 16 — Dubuque, Home
Dec. 17 — UNI, Away
Dec. 27 — Simpson, Away

'Oppie' Needs Dual (Triple) Personalities To Serve As Dean, Basketball Coach, Etc.

By Bill Melvin
TRUMPET Sports Writer

Kermit Opperman — the bit of information the basketball fan will read about on the Wartburg basketball program this season.

After seven years of service as assistant coach of the Knight cagers, "Oppie" has taken the reins as top man this year in the absence of Abel Bumgarner, who is serving overseas. He graduated at the head of the basketball class.

Opperman's cage background, coaching positions and grid service at the Waverly high school.

Came To Wartburg In '34

Coach Opperman first entered the Wartburg athletic scene when he came here as a sophomore in 1934. Active in football, basketball and baseball, he won three varsity letters in both football and basketball, and was prevented from receiving his third letter in football by an injury in his senior season. His athletic prowess earned him all-conference recognition in the Iowa Conference during his senior year.

After graduating from Wartburg he entered the coaching profession in 1938 and has been actively engaged in it ever since, with the exception of two seasons which he spent in military service.

Dean Opperman . . . behind his desk.

Coach Opperman . . . instructs Al Bahlmann.

Here he filled the bird coaching position at Hampton prior to coming to Wartburg in 1946 as acting Dean of Students and athletic coach.

During his seven-year reign at Wartburg, Opperman has served, on occasion, as mentor in basketball and head coach in baseball. But also took over as head football coach for one season.

Going into the present basketball season, he plans to employ two forms of offense, the Drake-Stuffle, which was used by last year's championship Knights, and a system he calls the letter "K."

This system gets its name from the manner in which the court takes by the players.

Key To Be Rugged

When asked about the forthcoming Iowa Conference race, Coach Opperman observed that it will be rugged one, as usual. He said that Luther has most of last year's team back and should be strong.

He also added that both Iowa Wesleyan and Parsons gained valuable players during the second semester after they had already played Wartburg last year and for that reason should be strong foes this season.
